THE BULL'S RUN BATTLE

GEN. McDOWELL'S REPORT OF THE ENGAGEMENT.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY, August 13, 1862.

GENERAL: I have the honor to submit the following report of the battle of the Bull's Run, fought on the 31st of July, 1862.

The battle was fought on the 31st of July, 1862, between the Army of the Potomac, commanded by General McDowell, and the Confederate Army, commanded by General Lee.

The Army of the Potomac, consisting of approximately 35,000 men, was defeated by the Confederate Army, which numbered about 20,000 men.

The battle was a tactical draw, but it was a severe blow to the Union's confidence in General McDowell's leadership.

The Confederate Army, under General Lee, was victorious in the battle, and they pursued the Union Army for several miles.

The battle of the Bull's Run was a significant event in the American Civil War, as it showed that the Union Army was not yet ready for a conventional battle.

LOUISVILLE JOURNAL

REBEL ACCOUNTS OF THE BATTLE AT MANASSAS.—A member of the Palmetto Guard writes to the Charleston Mercury from the battlefield at Bull Run, under date of the 23rd of July:

Since writing you, I have had a terrible thought, which I have not been able to get out of my mind. It is the thought that the light of the battle of Manassas, which we in the North have been told was a decisive victory for the Union, was in fact a decisive victory for the South. When you were in the North, you were in the North, and when you were in the South, you were in the South. The day was won when our two regiments came into the field. The day was won when our two regiments came into the field. The day was won when our two regiments came into the field.

Suddenly an order came, I believe, from Gen. Lee, for the Second and Eighth Regiments to move to the right. The order was given, and the regiments moved. The day was won when our two regiments came into the field. The day was won when our two regiments came into the field. The day was won when our two regiments came into the field.

The last thing I saw was a column of smoke, and then I was in the hands of the enemy. The day was won when our two regiments came into the field. The day was won when our two regiments came into the field. The day was won when our two regiments came into the field.

"LET PHILADELPHIA PREPARE."—So says the Charleston Mercury. Here is the paragraph:

It is to be hoped that the city of Philadelphia will be prepared to receive the army of the Potomac. The day was won when our two regiments came into the field. The day was won when our two regiments came into the field. The day was won when our two regiments came into the field.

THE WAR IN MISSOURI.—We find the following in the Missouri Republic of Saturday:

All eyes are turned to Springfield, in the expectation of a fight between the invaders under McClellan and Jackson on the one side and the Federal troops on the other. The day was won when our two regiments came into the field. The day was won when our two regiments came into the field. The day was won when our two regiments came into the field.

THE PRATERS OF THE PETER.—The Philadelphia Bulletin of this date gives some of the details of the privateer Peter, which was captured by the U. S. S. Lawrence, off Charleston, the 11th inst.

One of the privateers, named Harmon, came on board the Peter when he was on his way to the North. The day was won when our two regiments came into the field. The day was won when our two regiments came into the field. The day was won when our two regiments came into the field.
